BEOG check distribution set

By Mark Conroy
Student Writer

The first group of Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG) checks will be handed out to students Wednesday, Candy Karraker of the Student Work and Financial Assistance Office said Tuesday.

The checks had been held up until an authorization letter came from Washington, she said. It arrived Monday. "The letter certifies that the money has been put into our account," Karraker said.

BEOG checks can be picked up at the Bursar's Office in Woody Hall.

"The Wednesday checks will be for those students who submitted the Student Eligibility Report (SER) prior to the end of fall semester," Karraker said.

She added that a second group of checks should be available by Friday for students who submitted the SER during spring semester and have completed all necessary forms.

Karraker explained that the remainder of the BEOG checks will be issued sometime next week.

The check delay had caused problems for over 800 students. An official at the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance said the problem was a result of an SIU list of BEOG recipients being erased off a master list in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington.

Frank C. Adams, director of the Student Work and Financial Assistance Office, said, "We hope this does not happen again, but my experience with the federal government shows that this action will repeat itself within the next 12 months."

"If the government was as efficient in reimbursing our operations as the IRS is in collecting our money, then some of these problems could be eliminated."

"It is nice, however, to have our federal representatives working for us on this issue."

Adams suggested that BEOG recipients attending summer school should read the notice posted in the Bursar's Office concerning alternative aid programs. BEOG applications for the 1975-76 school year are available in Washington Square.

Roger Kuerth, junior-in-administration-of-justice, stops to see what the problem is as he passes through the recently installed book detection station at Morris Library. The system, which cost more than $50,000 to install, has already prevented an estimated 60 thefts. (Photo by Steve Sumner)

Thefts reduced Book detector device doing job at Morris

By Sue Voyles
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The new electronic book detector system at Morris Library has prevented an estimated theft of at least 60 books in its first week of operation.

Ralph McCoy, dean of library affairs, said 3,000 to 5,000 books have been stolen from Morris Library each year.

The $53,000 detector system, contributed by the Academic Excellence Fund, will pay for itself within a year, McCoy said.

Book thefts from other university libraries using this system have been reduced 70 to 90 per cent, he said.

It costs about 10 cents to process each book with the new system, McCoy said.

Most thefts have been new, special study texts with a $15 to $17 price tag, Sidney E. Matthews, assistant director of the library, said.

The system at both library exits reacts to an invisible, chemically-treated adhesive strip attached inside library books.

The "Tattle-Tape", made by the 3 M Company, is desensitized by an under-the-counter machine at the check-out desk.

"We're not out to punish anyone,"

Matthews said. "Often a student or a teacher will accidentally gather up a library book with his own and the system will detect this. If we do have a serious problem with a student who is stopped repeatedly, we will talk to the Dean of Student Affairs in regard to disciplinary action."

As yet, no one has been reported, McCoy said.

But there have been several cases when the alarm has rung, the student has turned around and scurried back into the library, Donna Pulcher, a student book checker, said.

Even though the system is not supposed to be triggered by metal objects, the alarm has rung several times for no apparent reason, Linda Davis, library assistant, said. It seems that some attaché cases also trigger the alarm, she said.

Though eventually briefcase and backpack checking will cease, McCoy said it will be continued until he is doubly sure that all the desired material is processed.

Edith Crawley, who has been a security book checker for three years, said that the new system "will keep the books in the library."

As the new system makes her day more interesting, she loves to watch how the people react to technology's latest trappings at the library door, she said.

"Some people are frightened of the gates and others tiptoe over the ramps," she said.

Gus says he wonders what they'll do if someone steals the book detector.

APSC supports Center fee hike

By Jim Murphy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A planned $5 hike in the Student Center fee was given the approval of the Administrative and Professional Staff Council (APSC) Tuesday.

The $5 hike, if passed by the Board of Trustees, would raise the Student Center fee for full-time students to $20 per student per semester.

Clarence Dougherty, director of the Student Center, and Gene Peebles, manager of business operations, outlined the fee hike proposal to the eight-member APSC. Peebles explained that extra revenue was needed to offset rising utility costs.

A stipulation attached to the motion of approval calls for the "exploration" of a faculty-staff fee that would supplement the operation of the Student Center.

"As a way of showing concern for keeping costs down, I think it would be a good gesture," said Billie C. Jacobini, sponsor of the added measure.

In other action, the APSC voted to delay offering a recommendation on usage of the parking garage now under construction next to Fanner.

Will Travelstead, a member of the campus Traffic and Parking Committee, presented a list of six sticker eligibility options for the garage prepared by the parking committee.

"The real fight is going to be on who will be eligible to use the facility," he said.

The $800,000 double-decked parking facility is being financed out of parking fees and fines collected from students, faculty and staff.

"I think there should be red sticker spaces in the central campus area," Jacobini said, recommending that the lot be evenly divided between red and blue parking spaces.

A motion that would have put the APSC on record as favoring blue sticker usage only failed to gain a majority of the eight voting members.

The six options presented to the APSC by Travelstead included:

—designation of the lot as blue-red, making any red or blue sticker vehicle eligible to use it.

—division of the facility into equal red and blue sections, with parking restricted to posted areas.

—creation of a higher priced decal with purchase limited to faculty and staff.

—creation of the higher priced decal with purchase open to students as well as faculty and staff.

—two separate, higher-priced decals, one for students and the other for faculty and staff.

—designation of the new facility as a blue lot only, with no additional charge for usage.

Travelstead said the parking committee would not make a decision until April or May on the planned usage of the parking garage.

Walker speaks at child care meeting

Gov. Daniel Walker

By Dave Ibata
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The governor's fiscal 1976 budget will give $14 million to the Illinois Department of Child and Family Services, Gov. Dan Walker said.

Walker spoke Monday night on "Objectives for Child Welfare in Illinois" at a Carbondale meeting of the Illinois Child Care Association (CCA).

The governor told CCA members the $9 million increase will provide additional staff and inspectors to deal with day care center licensing, day care facilities for migrant children and an expanded child abuse program.

"We want all children to have the opportunity for natural, normal human experience," Walker said. "Every child has a right to a permanent family."

The objectives of the state and the CCA coincide, Walker said. "The goal must always be, whenever possible, to reunite the family," he said. Disagreements arise due to different policy perspectives, Walker continued. He stated, "Let us not confuse style and substance, let us not mistake enthusiastic dialog and mechanics as disagreement in basic goals."

Walker emphasized more effective child abuse programs. To handle an expected 3,200 reports of statewide child abuse, child and family services will ask for more workers to provide 24-hour facilities, Walker said. He encouraged cooperation among government, private agencies and individuals.

The state and the CCA must account for children, Walker said. "That shuttle to Texas must never resume operation," the governor said in reference to past out-of-state placement of juveniles in inferior facilities.

Walker asked the CCA to support a two-year appointment of Mary Lee Leahy, acting director of child and family services. Walker has submitted her name for approval by the state legislature. He said he expected little opposition to Leahy in either house.

News Roundup

U.S., Iran sign nuclear agreement

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has agreed to sell Iran eight nuclear power plants as part of an agreement that will total some $15 billion in non-oil trade over the next five years.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, signing a technical cooperation agreement with Hushang Ansary, minister of finance and economic affairs, called the pact "The largest agreement of this kind" between the United States and a foreign country.

The agreement and a joint communique were signed by Kissinger and Ansary after a two-day session of the joint U.S.-Iran commission.

"It reflects the deep political bonds which exist between our countries," Kissinger said.

The atomic project and other technological aid, labeled by Ansary in advance as spectacular, represent growing U.S. confidence in Iran as a force for stability in the Persian Gulf.

Cambodian aid request stalled

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford's emergency request for more U.S. military aid for Cambodia was temporarily shelved by a House Appropriations subcommittee Tuesday, until Congress approves a separate authorization for it.

Reps. Alfred A. Cederberg, R-Mich., and Bill Chappell Jr., D-Fla., said the subcommittee decided the military aid would have a better chance of approval in the full-house if it went through the regular authorization procedure.

Chairman Otto E. Passman, D-La., of the House Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations, which made the decision, had planned to short-circuit the normal procedure by simply authorizing the Cambodian money and appropriating it in a single appropriations bill.

But Chappell said it was Passman who recommended, in closed session, that the Cambodia money be deferred until Congress votes on a regular authorization bill for it. The subcommittee agreed to do that without voting, Chappell said.

IBHE to oversee educational TV

NORMAL, Ill. (AP)—The Illinois Board of Higher Education approved Tuesday a proposal to develop a statewide system for overseeing educational television stations.

The proposal, drafted by the staff, called for "an action plan for a statewide governing or coordinating mechanism for educational television."

The plan would be developed as part of the state's master plan for higher education.

Walker to seek $2.5 billion road budget

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Gov. Daniel Walker announced Tuesday he will ask for $2.5 billion in fiscal 1976 for roads, railroads, airports and other forms of transportation, an increase of 24 per cent over the figure for the current period.

The request for the Department of Transportation is the largest single budget in state government and traditionally amounts to nearly a quarter of the total state budget.

Walker said the $480 million increase in the DOT budget would not require a significant increase in the department's work force.

The request includes:

—$105 million to assist public transportation projects, including the renovation of more than 100 Chicago-area public transportation stations.

—$37 million in airport improvements of which $7 million is earmarked for work at 50 airports under Walker's accelerated building program.

—An increase in minority employment in the DOT by 30 per cent to 409 of the 8,300 persons on the department payroll.

The only reduction in appropriations requests within the DOT budget is in the local government share of gas tax receipts for local projects.

Indians show ability to solve own problems

SHIPROCK, N.M. (AP)—Armed Indians trickled out of an electronics plant on the Navajo Indian Reservation Monday as tribal leaders said the apparent end to the week-long occupation proves Indians can deal with their own problems.

"We resolved the problem by Navajo resources. We didn't have to call in the National Guard or any federal troops," said Navajo tribal chairman Peter MacDonald. "We did better. I think, than was done at Kent State, Watts and Wounded Knee."

Roland Dart, superintendent of the tribal police, said most of the estimated 40 to 60 persons holding the Fairchild Camera and Instrument Co. plant in Shiprock left early Monday. The dissidents who took over the building early Feb. 24 had identified themselves as members of the American Indian Movement.

The occupation began a few days after Fairchild laid off 140 employees, most of them Navajos. The layoffs left about 470 workers at the plant, which employed some 1,000 persons a year ago, company officials said.

Child care problems called No. 1 priority

By Jerie Jayne
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The public and government don't see that dealing with child care problems should be the No. 1 priority in Illinois, said Carolyn Chapman, president of the Illinois Association of 708 Boards.

The 708 boards are county groups that survey community mental health needs and apply for a tax to be levied to meet them.

Chapman spoke to a group of about 80 persons at a luncheon ending the annual Child Care Association (CCA) Convention Tuesday which was held in Southern Illinois for the first time.

The three-day convention consisted of small group discussions on a variety of child care problems, such as adoption, day care, juvenile delinquents and child abuse. More than 630 persons attended the convention, according to Carol McDermott, general chairman of the convention.

Chapman, from Belleville, said she learned a lot about the priorities and politics of the CCA during the convention.

"I see your strategy is to make the public aware that caring and raising is the true purpose of society as well as the family," she said to the CCA members.

She said the population explosion has led to a perverted society and government not concerned with the protection and caring of children.

"We need to see that our problems are worldwide problems. We need to look at ourselves as citizens of the world or find another planet," she said.

She asked CCA members to apply the skills and professionalism displayed at the convention to initiate a strong plan to limit population, counseling for families on an integrated basis with public services and private agencies, new methods to finance public education, expanded public health services and 24-hour emergency services.

Working with the government, she said, is the best way to achieve these goals.

"We need an informed public to pressure legislators for children's needs. We need to cultivate the legislature as we have cultivated our minds with day-by-day lobbying. We can inform and alert legislators when special legislation is at issue. And most of all we need to get good people into politics," she said.

It is the duty of CCA members, she said, to see that the aims of legislation is not frustrated by lack of funds or bogged down by too much administrative work.

ERA vote postponed; proponents absent

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—A scheduled Illinois Senate vote on the Equal Rights Amendment was postponed Tuesday because the resolution's chief sponsor said she lacked enough votes.

"I think the best procedure would be to postpone action on ERA until all the proponents are present," said Sen. Esther Saperstein, D-Chicago, who has spearheaded the drive for Senate adoption of the proposed amendment to ban sex discrimination.

"We will have to re-evaluate our position," she told newsmen after the Senate adjourned. She said she has not decided when the matter will be called for a vote.

Senate President Cecil A. Partee, D-Chicago, had scheduled consideration of ERA for Tuesday and throngs of women were in the Capitol to watch the voting.

Several senators, including some who have voted for ERA in the past, said they were disappointed that Mrs. Saperstein refused to call it for a vote Tuesday.

"I think we owe it to the people of Illinois to vote this up or down today," said Sen. Bill Morrison D-Waukegan.

New leaders being sought, Reedy says

George Reedy

By Laura Coleman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A new constituency of displaced intellectuals seeking new leaders with new programs is emerging in American society.

That is the contention of George Reedy, former press secretary to Lyndon Johnson and now dean of the journalism department at Marquette University in Milwaukee, Wisc. Reedy spoke to about 150 persons at Morris Library Auditorium Monday night.

The new group of people will consist of persons who have Ph.D.'s but do not have jobs. They have separated themselves from their family and their community and they are people who "thought of themselves in terms of what they did and what they produced only," Reedy said.

These people grew out of a "very subtle and very complex process" of government and the beauty of the process is that it worked, Reedy said.

"They kept a reasonably united nation and the people were quite capable of living in the same nation together," he said, but added that now the process is no longer working.

"What's been breaking down is not just a loss of leadership but somewhere the process has become clogged, the channels are not open and they don't seem to be working."

The new constituency will be looking for a leader who will be able to define and articulate the basic issues of the group, Reedy said.

Reedy said the Democratic contenders for the 1976 presidential nomination "look like a group of men applying for a job."

The loss of confidence in elected officials is no accident, he said. "It's tied to the state of the society itself."

The most outstanding development in the United States during the past two decades, Reedy said, is the "amazing separation of the human being from the production process."

"There's an increasing question of the larger and larger groups of people who play no important role in production itself," he said. "They've become not wards of the state, but part of it only in the sense of their consumption."

Reedy said the American is as "interchangeable as the parts of an erector set. "We've produced a certain way of life. A substantial number of people find they're not only inessential in the production process but also in the social process."

He said today's citizen is "separated from any type of identification with the family and lives the kind of life which is almost dictated by an endless shuffle of papers."

Reedy said the "tragedy" of the "large swarms of Ph. D.'s hoping for any job they can get" is an indication of a society in which a high degree of technology has rendered human beings superfluous.

Counseling methods vary at Synergy

Editor's note: This is the last of a two-part series on Synergy, a counseling center which has expanded since 1970 from dealing exclusively with drug-related problems to include "life-related" problems—suicide and interpersonal relationships. Counseling services are open to the public.

By Mary Whittier
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Synergy offers both drug-related and life-related crisis intervention. Staff members at Synergy have varied backgrounds and use a variety of counseling methods.

Staff members Ron Shanas and Gloria Lee said that the counseling done at Synergy takes place in a "warm, supportive, non-judgmental environment."

Although most of the staff members use a lot of Gestalt theory and empathy skills training, Shanas said that "we use an interdisciplinary approach to counseling."

Empathy skills teach people how to understand each other and how to indicate that they do understand, Shanas said. He said an exercise in empathy training is to have the client say something. The Synergy helper then paraphrases the statement. The client then has an opportunity to correct any misunderstanding that the paraphrase may contain.

Empathy skills are considered by Synergy staff members to be "a general skill for facilitating effective communications," Shanas said.

Shanas said that this "provides a reality check to the client to show that indeed he is being understood, and that the helper is aware of how the client is feeling."

Beg your pardon

If you had a big test scheduled for March 4 and, after looking at the date on Tuesday's Daily Egyptian, decided to put off studying for it—you're in trouble. The dateline on page one of Tuesday's paper was incorrectly set as Wednesday, February 26. After extensive research by Daily Egyptian staffers, it has been decided the dateline should have read "Tuesday, March 4." In case you're still confused, today is Wednesday, March 5—we think.

The weather

Wednesday: mostly sunny and warmer. High in the upper 40s or lower 50s.
Wednesday night: increasing cloudiness and warmer. Low in the 30s.
Thursday: mostly cloudy and mild with a chance of showers. High in the upper 50s or lower 60s.

Gestalt theory was explained by staff members as a process which reintegrates the body and mind.

Gestalt theory is good to use in intrapersonal conflict resolution, Shanas said. An example of a conflict within a person is the familiar situation of wanting to do well in a class, but also wanting to sleep through the class. Shanas said a method used by Synergy is called the empty chair. In this method the client verbalizes his desire to sleep late in the morning to the empty chair. He then switches chairs and verbalizes his desire to do well in a class.

This process allows the client to become aware of his feelings and come to a solution.

All of the Synergy staff members have had training through professional consultants, Shanas said.

Aeon, another Carbondale counseling center, holds weekly in-staff training sessions which are open to Synergy staff members.

The SIU Counseling Center has been helping train Synergy staff in couples counseling, Shanas said. The training has been an on-going project for the past year, with one session being held each week.

With permission from the clients, Synergy staff members go over counseling sessions with professionals or among themselves, Shanas said. He said as a rule an hour of counseling time will involve an hour of evaluating the session.

Staff members periodically attend workshops led by professional psychiatrists. About 16 staff members will attend a workshop in Chicago sponsored by Esalen, an institute founded by Dr. Frederick Perls, Shanas said.

Transactional analysis, bioenergetics, relaxation, and behavior modification theory are used by some members of the Synergy staff.

Transactional analysis is not used in its pure form at Synergy. It refers to the three types of personalities within an individual—the child, the adult and the parent.

Parent statements are usually ingrained values imparted by our parents, Shanas said.

Adult statements are rational decisions based upon input from the child and parent statements, and information from the real world, Shanas said.

Child statements are from "the kid in all of us," Shanas said. He said this is the uninhibited part of an individual's personality.

Often problems are created because the three parts of a personality are in conflict with each other, Shanas said. He said transactional analysis works to resolve the conflicts.

Bioenergetics is expressing emotion and feeling with the body, Shanas said.

Relaxation theory teaches people who are overtly tense to relax, Shanas said.

Behavior modification is changing one's surroundings so people demonstrate positive behavior, staff member Scott Vierky said.

Synergy, located at 905 S. Illinois Ave., is housed in a geodesic dome designed by Buckminster Fuller.

Gary Morava

More than a year has passed since the death of All-American gymnast Gary Morava. Morava suffered a fractured cervical disc and a severed spinal cord during a practice session at the SIU Arena. He died Feb. 28, 1974.

Within a week after Morava's death the Student Senate passed a bill requesting the Board of Trustees to redesignate the Arena as the Gary Morava Memorial Arena.

An ad hoc committee, under Richard Mager, vice president of development and services, is being formed to recommend names for buildings, streets and other University property. This committee will include representatives from eight areas, including the Student Senate and Graduate Student Council.

When the committee is organized, recommendations will be studied upon. After an appropriate name has been chosen, the committee recommends its choice to President Warren W. Brandt. If he approves, Brandt then recommends the name to the board. The Board has the final authority to name a University facility.

Several buildings on campus are named after former presidents or prominent persons in SIU's history.

The new committee should begin its work by naming the arena the Gary Morava Memorial Arena, after a person who honored SIU as an athlete and student.

Morava brought recognition to SIU through his gifted gymnastic talent. He was associated with the United States teams in the Pan-American games, the US-Russia games and the Collegiate All-American Team.

Morava was fatally injured in the arena in which he lead SIU to many triumphant gymnastic meets.

Release all the funds

The federal government recently had nearly $11 billion in impounded highway funds. The money had been impounded throughout several administrations, including the advance impoundment of all federal highway financing for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1976.

President Ford recently ordered that $2 billion from this fund be released to update and renew existing road systems. White House officials estimate that use of the money could provide nearly 125,000 jobs.

Shortly after Ford's announcement, a federal judge ordered that $2 billion be released in impounded highway funds for 12 states that had brought court action to win release of the money. Federal District Judge John Smith said the Federal Highway Administration was illegally withholding the funds to control inflation. The government was ordered to cease withholding such funds in the future. The possibility exists that other states may also file court action for release of their funds. For the present, though, up to $4 billion should become available in impounded highway funds. That means that considerably more jobs can be made available.

But this leaves nearly $7 billion in impounded highway funds.

In the present period of recession and high unemployment, the need for such financial resources is great. The $7 billion should be released to create jobs and stimulate the economy. As long as the money remains idle, so will many of its country's workers.

Anyone can argue ideals when it seems convenient

Ours is a society of contradiction. A society in which individuals' ideals, the supposed foundation of a healthy culture, are relative—fluctuating wildly in relation to one's personal dilemma.

We should all remember the ghastly images of hardhat construction workers and anti-war demonstrators battling it out on our television screens in the spring of 1970, shortly after then President Nixon announced the United States was sending troops into Cambodia to help achieve "peace with honor." The violence of American vs. American on that cold spring day in New York City stands out as the zenith of the deviousness caused in this nation over the Vietnam War. The stereotyped hippies were against the war and the stereotyped hardhats were against the hippies and the disruption they caused in the streets of New York City.

Last Thursday, the hardhats were out in the streets again, causing the same type of chaos they so vehemently opposed a few short years ago. This time, unemployment within the construction industry brought them out in protest. They don't like the job President Ford is doing and one of the group's leaders warned, "if we get hungry we're going to tear this city down." How conveniently ideals change.

News reports indicated that most of the angry hardhats were white, as is most of the construction industry. A good many of them were probably from the "pull yourself up by the bootstraps" school of thought when blacks were complaining in the 1960s that they weren't getting a fair shake. Now they seem to realize there are no bootstraps on bare feet.

Of course, there is no mystery behind the change in ideals. These people were driven to the streets last week because of the almighty dollar. It seems that there aren't a helluva lot of greenbacks around these days because so many people are unemployed. But this will get better, our leaders insure us. Even Ford admits that things are bad, but he will never admit the reasons why. He will never tell us that the American way of wasteful production and inequity in the distribution of wealth are the causes of our problems. Blame it on the Arabs for hoarding their newly discovered oil or blame it on the Jews for making the Arabs angry. Blame it on anyone or anything, but not on America. Our leaders, the two loftiest of whom never received a single citizen's vote, tell us that through tough, disciplined Americanism, we can make it. Bite your bullets and tighten your belts, but do it the American way, and watch out for the peril of "galloping socialism."

The current economic slime we are in should, to the reasonable soul, point out that we cannot get along with a totally free-market economy. As our world becomes more complex and more variables are thrown into the pot, additional control is needed. Our constitution is an 18th century document with an 18th century frame of reference. How long are we to rely on such antiquated ideology?

It is frightening that the so-called great minds in this nation have no answers for the mess in which we currently find ourselves. There are only the hollow reassurances of politicians dependent on citizens for votes to "hang on; we've been through tougher times." No doubt, we have. The world didn't begin in 1950 and we must realize that against the totality of time and history, we are a drop in a bucket. But let us not fall into the convenient trap of believing that things will magically work themselves out; that we are so great and mighty we can overcome all obstacles. It was that egocentricity that led to the fall of the Roman Empire. We must seek new antidotes for new ailments.

Ford, or any other politician cannot get up and say that the American system is at fault, that would be unpatriotic. Maybe when the food and money run out completely, there will be a new group disrupting the streets of New York City. What they demand will be anybody's guess. What ideals they espouse will depend on what seems most convenient.

Trends indicate small farmers face extinction

Commentary

If independent cattlemen and dairy farmers are to survive, the government must provide immediate aid through loans and price supports.

Farmers face inflated production costs that have wiped out beef and dairy profits and forced suppliers to sell at a loss. A University of Illinois study predicts that if present trends continue, the number of dairy farmers in the U.S. will drop from 400,000 to 200,000 by 1980. Cattlemen face a similar spectre of financial demise.

If the independents go under, dwindling meat and dairy supplies will drive up retail prices. The nation's food resources will be further concentrated in the hands of agribusiness—giving corporate farms economic and political clout to set prices as high as they wish, as spokesmen for the National Farmers' Organization have warned.

Agribusiness has the capital to weather the crisis. The independent farmer faces bankruptcy—unless the government provides help.

Abortive attempts using price-freezing to halt inflation precipitated the meat shortage of 1973. Sensing a loss of profits, cattlemen withheld beef from wholesalers until price ceilings were removed in September, 1973. A glut of meat then drove prices down on an average of 20 cents per pound at the retail level.

To compound the farmer's troubles, in 1974 feed costs climbed 25.7 per cent. Costs for fuel and farm equipment and interest on loans have skyrocketed.

Despite the Ford Administration's efforts to halt inflation, prices continue to rise.

Profits for dairy farmers have also disappeared. In the spring of 1973, a Wisconsin dairy farmer could sell milk at $8.78 per hundred pounds, up $5.35 from late 1972 prices. In late 1974, a hundred pounds of milk brought only $7.10. Sales are 7.1 per cent below 1973 levels, and huge surpluses have built up. However, retail dairy prices have remained constant over the past year.

President Ford revealed ignorance of the livestock owners' plight when, in his Oct. 8, 1974 speech on the economy, he called upon U.S. farmers to produce at full capacity to drive down food prices. Such a policy spells disaster for the hard-pressed beef and dairy farmer.

To draw national attention to their quandary, cattlemen have conducted mass slaughters of livestock. National Farmers' Organization members in Southern Illinois now contemplate similar action. President Ford has condemned such killings as "shocking and wasteful."

Driving independent farmers into bankruptcy, and delivering America's food production into the hands of agribusiness, is more than just "shocking."

Federal loans will bail out financially distressed farmers. Price supports, federal purchasing of foodstuffs, will take up future surplus and guarantee satisfactory wholesale prices.

The federal government gives benefits to big corporations to stimulate expansion. At the very least, Washington can offer the independent farmer a chance to survive.

OPEC considering hardline against U.S.

By Michael Goldsmith
Associated Press Writer

ALGIERS (AP)—Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika of Algeria urged oil exporting nations over the weekend to adopt a hardline plan to defend themselves against "the export of inflation in the United States to the rest of the world."

Bouteflika, unanimously elected chairman of a ministerial meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), proposed a program that includes reducing oil production to match demand and refusing payment in weak currencies such as the U.S. dollar.

The 13 nations of OPEC are meeting at the International Conference Center 20 miles west of Algiers to agree on a posture for negotiating with consuming nations on energy issues. The ministerial session is to be followed by a summit conference starting Tuesday.

The fiery Algerian minister, who was president of the last U.N. General Assembly, said the industrialized countries, by reducing their oil imports, allowing the value of the dollar to slide downward and revaluing their gold stocks, have reduced the real price of oil.

"Such a situation cannot be allowed to continue," he said.

He accused industrialized nations of a "veritable crusade" against the oil exporters by seeking to mobilize public opinion and manipulating international monetary mechanisms.

His four-point plan, to be discussed behind closed doors, demanded agreement among the OPEC countries to:

—Bring overall OPEC production down to the total level of demand in the importing countries.

—Reduce the OPEC members' monetary surpluses to avoid oil revenues being eaten away by inflation.

—Establish a system of indexing oil prices by basing them on the prices of industrial equipment and other capital goods, services and foodstuffs imported by the oil exporting countries.

—End the practice of quoting oil prices "in a currency which harmfully diminishes the purchasing power of the oil producing countries."

The oil ministers took up last week the issue of quoting oil prices in something other than dollars, but postponed a decision by referring it to the OPEC economic commission, which meets in April.

The Persian Gulf emirate of Abu Dhabi, which needs more money to meet aid commitments to poor countries, announced Saturday that it was lowering oil prices by 55 cents a barrel in order to get oil companies to increase production. But OPEC ministers have made clear consuming nations should not expect similar price slashes elsewhere.

Abu Dhabi's high quality oil has been selling for about $11.20 a barrel. Production averaged 1.6 million barrels daily at the end of 1974 but fell to between 400,000 and 700,000 during the past two months because of the oil glut in the West.

Do this, don't do that

To the Daily Egyptian:

Some people don't mind performing a job only to find students ignoring their end-product. I often think this must be the case for the man or woman who painted so diligently the NO SMOKING signs in classrooms throughout campus. To some these two words merely take up needed chalkboard space or offer something to read as they reach for their third cigarette of the hour. To others, at first, it was a hopeful beginning to enjoy a lecture without irritating smoke being blown in their direction.

Letters to the 'Daily Egyptian'

The Daily Egyptian welcomes expression of opinions from all members of the University community. Writers are requested to be concise and in the event the subject has a time element, to bring the day as possible. The editors reserve the right to condense letters to permit a larger variety of opinions. To correct minor typographical and grammatical errors, and to omit material that is considered libelous or in bad taste. Letters should be typed, double spaced, and accompanied by the full address and signature of the writer.

With the advent of the signs the non-smoker felt someone was listening. If this SOMEONE was indeed listening his or her method of communication surely needs some alterations.

Perhaps the smoker feels the No Smoking signs are just another reminder, such as the Surgeon General's scrawl on the cigarette package, that he or she is doing harm to the lungs. Most smokers will readily answer that if anyone tells them the smoke is bothersome the smoker will not smoke. This is fine but logically the smoker should be doing the asking: "Can I pollute your environment a little more than it already is?"

What's the answer? I don't know. Consideration, concern for the environment, concern for one's own body or perhaps a little sacrifice during classes is certainly appreciated.

In defense of Danilo

To the Daily Egyptian:

This letter is directed to Wes Smith in light of his comments concerning Dr. Orescanin. Mr. Smith, why do you feel so strongly against a professor of this University that apparently you have never taken a course from? I say this because anyone who has had a course from Dr. Orescanin knows that he is an educated man in the field of Business Administration.

Granted, you may have mixed or sour feelings concerning the recent trial, but why must you equate the verdict handed down to Orescanin with his teaching competency? Mr. Smith, I would like to add that I do not plan to use Dr. Orescanin as any type of reference in the future, nor do I agree 100 per cent with the results of the trial, it is just that I am getting sick and tired of hearing derogatory comments from you and others concerning the man in his capacity of professor.

History professor says public liked Nixon's "ruthless" image

By Diane Solberg
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Even though Richard Nixon projected a "clumsy" image compared to John Kennedy, he managed to become President because of a ruthless image.

In his Thursday lecture, "Richard Nixon: America's Sex Symbol or Sex Roles in American Politics," Michael Batinski, assistant professor of history, said that Americans vote for candidates who present a ruthless image. The public does not want humanitarians because they are considered too weak "to get the job done," he said. Batinski, who received his doctorate from Northwestern University in 1969, said, "journalists are naive, too when they say that a political moralist image sways people."

Eugene McCarthy and Adlai Stevenson II could never become president because they projected "womanly qualities" such as intellectualism, Batinski said.

He said McCarthy's hero is St. Thomas More, a man who was beheaded because of his principles. Nixon's hero is Vince Lombardi, the football coach, a man of "action", Batinski added.

The Lombardi qualities, he said, go back to the 19th century when pioneers began moving west. The rugged image that is expected of leaders would not allow "a woman to have control over the button." Batinski said in reference to the Cuban missile crisis.

He added that women are expected to be the moralists and intellectuals. "Put her in the home and give her time to read the Bible," Batinski said.

He said Adlai Stevenson II was the only one to ask John Kennedy whether a nuclear holocaust is worth a test of wills between Khrushchev and Kennedy.

He said that as a result of Stevenson's views, Robert Kennedy, attorney general during the Kennedy administration, said that Stevenson was a "wishy-washy old lady" who shouldn't represent the United States at the U.N.

About 20 persons attended the lecture sponsored by the Feminist Action Coalition.

New food stamp regulations may disqualify some students

Illinois college students claimed as income tax dependents by their families may no longer be eligible for food stamps.

Effective March 1, new U.S. Department of Agriculture standards prohibit students from participating in a food stamp program if more than half of their support comes from a household that is ineligible for food stamps.

The change applies to any student, 18 or over, who attends any educational institution beyond high school.

According to the Illinois Department of Public Aid (IDPA), the regulations apply only to students claimed as income tax dependents. Other members of the student's household can receive food stamps if they are eligible.

Students currently receiving food stamps will be notified if they fail to qualify for continued program participation through the IDPA's regular food stamp recertification process.

Students will have an opportunity to show IDPA that they do not receive more than half their support from an ineligible household, IDPA officials said.

NORML head to discuss bill on pot reform

Paul Kuhn, Midwest coordinator of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML), will speak on an Illinois Bar Association bill to decriminalize marijuana in Illinois.

Kuhn will speak at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Roman Room.

The speech is co-sponsored by the Southern Illinois branch of NORML and Student Government, according to Buzz Talbot, regional coordinator for NORML.

Kuhn is a financial investment counselor in a Chicago firm and the founder of Illinois NORML, Talbot said. He has been a NORML volunteer for the past two years.

NORML supports the bill, which would make private possession of marijuana a civil rather than a criminal offense. Kuhn will discuss the need for the law and legal precedents set in other states.

Health Service to conduct exams for birth control

A birth control clinic will be conducted for female students at Health Service from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday.

The clinic is for students who want to be examined for birth control pills, said Dr. Don Knapp, medical director for the Student Health Program. He said no appointment will be required for the clinic. Examinations will be given on a first-come, first-serve basis, he said.

A breast examination, pelvic examination, Pap smear and tests for gonorrhea will be included. There will be a $3 charge for the Pap smear and no charge for other tests, Knapp said.

The clinic will be equipped to handle 50 to 60 students, Knapp said.

Career tapes available for SIU students

The Career Planning and Placement Center (CPPC) has assembled a library of tape recordings that will aid students in choosing careers and majors.

Tapes of interviews with department chairmen and advisers from every department offering a major at SIU are available for students to listen to, according to Gordon Plumb, graduate assistant at the counseling office. The recorded interviews will answer students' questions concerning program requirements, job potential and graduate training in the various fields, Plumb said.

Students may listen to the tapes in the Counseling Unit of CPPC in Woody Hall C-202.

SAFER ROADS AHEAD

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major effort is under way to make old highways safer for travel, according to Donald B. Stabler, president of The Road Information Program.

The Federal Highway Administration has obligated $121 million under a new program for specific safety-oriented projects such as installing left-turn lanes, improving rail-highway grade crossings and widening and rebuilding existing roads, Stabler said.

urban areas will be necessary by the year 2000 to provide for the needs of America's aged, says a Chicago University planner.

Steven Golant, a member of the departments of Geography and Science at the University of Chicago, told a group of students and faculty Thursday night that communities planned exclusively for the elderly, and housing units for the aged within all-age neighborhoods are two feasible plans.

These housing projects will have to be located in metropolitan areas, Golant said, because future elderly populations will be widely scattered.

The number of persons over the age of 65 living in suburbs has grown at a rate three times greater than that of the elderly population as a whole, over the last 20 years.

Supportive services could easily and economically be provided in housing units or communities planned for older persons and "would also provide an alternative to institutions for all but the most frail," Golant said.

America's elderly have become increasingly independent of family and relatives and the number of aged people who head their own households has almost doubled since 1950, Golant said. The aged would have a much more independence under the different types of age-segregated housing.

Choir to sing classics

The University Choir, conducted by Robert Kingsbury, will sing at 8 p.m., Wednesday and Thursday at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church.

Instead of the Bach Mass originally scheduled to be performed as the major work, the 31-voice choir will sing the Bach "Motet II, Jesus, Priceless Treasure." The choir will also perform Vivaldi's "Concert in G minor for Recorder, Oboe and Continuo."

Soprano Marjane Marvin will sing the aria, "Vieni, O Cara" from Steffani's "Brieseide" for soprano, recorder, oboe and continuo. The concert is free and open to the public.

Big brothers to hold initial area meeting

A meeting will be held 7 p.m. Thursday for persons interested in volunteering as big brothers or sisters to youths who have been in correctional institutions, said Tom Skora, a graduate student in rehabilitation who is coordinator for the program.

The meeting, in activities Room D of the Student Center, will be an attempt to establish a "Fresh Air" program in Jackson County.

"Essentially we are attempting to establish one of the most basic needs in life. That's a friendship between two human beings," said Skora. "In the program, we are looking for people to work on a one-to-one basis with kids who have been in trouble."

Skora said that training or experience in guidance is not required of volunteers.

Skora said that those who cannot attend the meeting may contact him from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at 457-6703.

On the Records

Blood on the Tracks By Bob Dylan Columbia Records

By Deborah Singer
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

As the album's liner notes say, "It is not his voice that has grown richer, stronger, more certain; it is Dylan himself." And indeed, the nasal lamenting voice is still there, only sounding better. So are the words and poetry of a man who just barely missed being sucked into the traps he wrote about.

Not so angry, and slightly softened around the edges, Dylan the troubadour is back. No longer having to chronicle an age of discontent, he can relax more now. He can be funny, sentimental, romantic or even angry with a simplicity, or honesty, that was missing in most of his recent work. This is Dylan's best album since "Blonde on Blonde."

Dylan is not happy with the '70s he awoke to after having retreated for a few years to Woodstock, New York, and the assumed facade of contentment. And as we found in the past with such songs as "Positively 4th Street," and "Can You Please Crawl Out Your Window," it is an angry Dylan who has the most to say.

In a cut off the album called "Idiot Wind," Dylan's anger has been tempered with a maturity and mercy that was not seen in his mid-60s work. He is no longer futilely beating his head against society's cancerous wall, but sees himself as part of the illness. "We're idiots, babe. It's a wonder we can even feed ourselves," Dylan marvels at our ability to cope.

This album is also a very personal and apparently therapeutic effort for Dylan. It seems there are many things he had to clarify in his own head that Dylan is now ready to share. He best explains it on "Tangled Up in Blue," with the lines, "And when finally the bottom fell out—I became withdrawn. The only thing I knew how to do—Was to keep on keepin' on."

These are only two of the ten songs on "Blood on the Tracks," some of which I'm sure will become classics. Therefore they are only two of the five basic themes Dylan explores which are essentially love, rejection, bitterness, dreams and the contradictory nature of truth and illusions.

But as L. A. Times music critic Robert Hilburn said, "The impetus for Dylan's legend in the Sixties came from his articulation of the social concerns of a generation. But pop priorities have changed. Entertainment, diversion and disco now reign. And there's not much you can dance to on 'Blood on the Tracks.' Dylan's artistry remains, but I wonder how many people will be listening."

"Medicine Wheel" By David Rioridan Capitol Records

By M.C. Jolls
Student Writer

"Medicine Wheel," David Rioridan's first solo album for Capitol

Records is an incentive spark that could lead to a blazing solo career. Yet, it make take the fuel of future albums to ignite a steady flame. The album is not pretentious, not is it obscure, with songwriting talent that will probably become more mature and unique as Rioridan surveys the fret board for more possibilities.

Playing acoustical guitar, Rioridan's mellow songs are far from the bubbly pop sound Sugar Loaf got with the 1972 AM hit he wrote for them, "Green-Eyed Lady." His voice carries a mild Cat Stevens quality in it, but does not contain an unmistakable tone that many solo artists take advantage of. His songwriting, however, vibrates will and spins "Medicine Wheel" near the top of the stack of the many, new performers.

The album is clearly recorded, with "Round and Round," "Waiting By the Road," and the title cut, "Medicine Wheel" providing the best examples of Rioridan's thought out, crisp, folk style that forms and smooths each song. It is well fitted and incorporates the talents of over fifteen other musicians, including Tim Weisburg.

Rioridan's lyrics are somewhat simplistic, yet compensation is made by his knowledge of the recording studio and experience in "Medicine Wheel" is a fair remedy for the chaotic frustration of selection new albums. It points to a feverish activity of songwriting that may blossom and provide an antidote for the venomous material occupying the sound waves.

"Spider Jiving" By Andy Fairweather Low A and M Records

By M.C. Jolls
Student Writer

"Spider Jiving" is Andy Fairweather Low's musical return to Britain and his debut to the States. "Spider Jiving" is a collection of Low's experiences, disappointments and general disillusionments laid out in lyrical form, put to music and recorded into eleven songs. The result is lyrically fair and musically poor.

Low's songs are redundant in sound and although he technically mixes everything from soul to country quite well, the album has a cheap, almost bubble-gum quality to it. This is fine, if Low wishes to make quick bucks, but in areas of uniqueness and lasting appreciation, "Spider Jiving" does not bid high enough.

Even Low's voice, which according to "Rolling Stone" is "one of the quirkiest and most distinctive in recent pop memory," comes off stylistically imitative to the sound Roger Daltrey achieved in his solo album, "Daltrey."

The efforts of "Spider Jiving" however, are not that inclusive. "Mellow Down" carries a well-fitted lively tone, enhanced by Charlie McVey's bass harmonica. The steel guitar of Weldon Myrick weaves nicely through "The Light is Within" and the message in "Keep on Rocking" is well appropriated to Low's somewhat unsentimental, humorous approach to life.

"Continental American" By Peter Allen A and M Records

By Michael Hawley
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

At bottom, the problem with singer-songwriter Peter Allen's performance at SIU was the excess "oomph" he put into his material. Performing songs from his album "Continental American," he unsuccessfully tried turning ballads into rockers, possibly in an attempt to please a college audience.

Now that the album has arrived, it's dispiriting to hear Allen now suffering from the exact opposite dilemma "Continental American" is underproduced and unnecessarily humble. Most of the arrangements to his beautiful songs are simple to the point of annoyance. One suspects producer Joel Dorn is the culprit, considering the excess of energy Allen relays on stage.

Once he finds a satisfactory in should have, Peter Allen now between, however, the songs he writes are mellow and irresistibly fresh. This Australian has a knack for injecting a smudge of pathos into these personal songs, without being pathetic. Allen's voice isn't the greatest, but it serves his material well.

Among the best of "Continental American" is the ricky-ticky analysis of nostalgia, "Everything Old is New Again," "Just Ask Me I've Been There," "Pretty Pretty" and the album's title song, a reminiscence of the late 1960's discotheque scene. Also included on the album is Allen's song made famous by Olivia Newton John, "I Honestly Love You."

The only piece not written by Allen on "Continental American" is an old Bing Crosby tune, "Just a Gigolo," which both opens and closes the album in slightly different versions. This song is nostalgia at its best. Unlike the song's gigolo, Allen is offering more than cheap romance. Hopefully, his future producers will catch on.

SBA seeks students in minority recruitment

By Joanne Hollister
Student Writer

The Student Bar Association (SBA) at SIU isn't sure of the role it can play in the workings of the Law School, but on its own, it has set up programs for student participation.

The Law School is working in the area of minority recruitment. The SBA has taken part in recruitment.

"Mainly we try to attract people," said Ralph Frederick SBA president. "Basically the role is small. Students have no voice in administrative policies. It is very uncertain what type of role law students can play."

SBA has student representatives on the Faculty Admissions and Scholarship Committee and an ad hoc committee on minority recruitment.

State schools have different admission policies than private ones. State law schools need definite admissions policies, Frederick said.

"There are inequities in the testing process," he said. Minorities do not do as well as white middle class students, he said.

The Law School has no affirmative action program, but the students are in favor of such a program, Frederick said.

SBA made a matching funds proposal to the Law School Division of the American Bar Association (ABA). It asked for a grant equal to money from its own funds for its minority recruitment program. SBA gets funding from the Graduate Student Council. It has about $450 for the year.

Frederick is sure the grant proposal was denied. "We never heard from them. We submitted the request last fall, late October, in fact," he said.

Recently SBA sent two students to SIU-E to participate in a Black Student Association career day. SBA will be represented at the March 1 workshop for prospective law students, as part of professional day activities at the Student Center.

SBA was successful with its prison visitation program. The ABA allotted matching funds. Interested law students went to the Vienna Correctional Center.

"It was totally a visitation-type thing, a learning experience for law students to see what an inmate may go through," Frederick said.

County official awaits hearing in firing by Board of Supervisors

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Lowell Heller, county supervisor of assessments, will have a public hearing March 19 on the county board's decision not to rehire him. He requested the hearing in a Thursday night meeting of the Jackson County Board of Supervisors. The board voted 6-5 along party lines not to rehire Heller in its Feb. 14 session.

Heller said the changeover would cost the taxpayers because of the time needed to learn the assessing process.

Because of the nature of his dismissal, Heller said the board may have difficulty in finding qualified persons for executive positions if changeovers result each time a new political party comes to power.

In a letter, Heller asked the board to grant him a public hearing into the reasons for his dismissal.

A Republican, Heller completes a four-year term as assessor in June. He is allowed to reapply for his position, but he would not comment on the possibility of doing so. A

More funding now available for veterans

Veterans in need of financial aid to continue GI Bill education are eligible for increased benefits under the Veterans Administration's (VA) work study grant program, according to the VA.

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Richard L. Roudsbush said that a December 3 law (PL 93-508) increased the amount veterans can earn in the program to a maximum of $625 per semester for full-time students who agree to work 250 hours for the agency.

Prior to December, VA could provide a maximum of only $250 a fiscal year to a limited number of selected veterans for 100 hours of service.

From April 1973 when the original program started through last December, 27,157 veterans received nearly $6.6 million in grants for 2.6 million hours of work, Roudsbush said.

Veterans interested in work study grants should apply to the VA regional offices which maintain their records, the VA said.

Relocation set for department

The Community Development Department will have a new home beginning March 10, according to chairman Paul Denise.

Denise said CD will be moving to section C on the fourth floor of the Faner Building to provide more space for the School of Liberal Arts and Sciences. The department is presently located in section B on the third floor of Faner.

KINA IS NEW CURRENCY

PORT MORESBY, Papua New Guinea (AP) — Papua New Guinea's new currency, to be known as the kina, will go into effect in late April, Finance Minister Julius Chan announced.

The exact date for the changeover from Australian currency to kinas will depend on when new banknotes are delivered from the printers in Australia and coins minted in London, he said.

Legal fund started to defend policemen

By Mark Kazowski
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A financial assistance and legal aid fund has been established to aid the four Carbondale policemen charged with illegal restraint for allegedly abandoning a Carbondale man in a rural area.

The four officers—Patrolmen Mel Krokel, Robert Goro and William Holmes and Sgt. Marvin Voss—have taken a leave of absence without pay from the police department pending the outcome of the legal proceedings.

Carbondale Police Chief George Kennedy said they requested the leave of absence so City Manager Carroll Fry would not make a decision influencing the court case.

Detective Mark Berkowitz, coordinator of the fund raising, said the project was not organized by the police department or the Carbondale Police Officers' Association.

"It's being done on a personal basis," Berkowitz said. He explained that the four officers have no income and three of the four have families to support.

According to Berkowitz, $65 had been donated and $1,000 pledged by Tuesday afternoon. He said much of the money is coming from Carbondale businessmen.

The three patrolmen allegedly took Sylvester Moore, at Voss' orders, to a rural area about 30 miles southwest of Carbondale and put him out of the car.

Moore was picked up for fighting with Willie Spates of Carbondale outside the Illinois Central Depot Feb. 18. No charges were filed. Kennedy said Moore was allegedly taken to a rural area to "cool off."

The four are scheduled to appear at a preliminary hearing 10 a.m. Thursday in the Jackson County Courthouse.

Anyone donating money to the fund can request that the money go to legal aid or financial assistance, Berkowitz said.

Donations or pledges should be addressed to Michael Travelstead, University Bank, Berkowitz said.

Education conference set for Student Center

The Fifth Annual "Good Teaching Practices Conference" will begin its two-day session Thursday at the Student Center with speaker William C. Morse, author of "Conflict in the Classroom" and "The Education of Emotionally Disturbed Children."

Over 45 discussion topics will include integration, managing problem behaviors, learning and interest centers, language development, services for pre-school handicapped and work study programs.

Additions to this year's conference include sessions for special education administrators and supervisors, and a full day of sessions for building supervisors, principals and superintendents in charge of children with special needs.

A session titled "Physician and Education Symposium" will be held for the first time this year. A half-day workshop is also set for those interested in starting an association for children with learning disabilities in Southern Illinois.

Included in Friday's activities will be a creative arts theatre, a video tape theater, a panel discussion, and a multi-agency panel forum.

To register, call Jean Preston at 549-0331.

Programs for the handicapped probed

A special symposium on "Programming for the Handicapped Child" will be presented Thursday by the SIU School of Medicine in cooperation with the Department of Special Education at the Student Center, preceding the Fifth Annual Good Teaching Practices Conference.

Aimed at bringing together physicians and educators to explore coordinated programming for the disabled child, the luncheon and afternoon symposium will feature Dr. Marvin A. Fishman, director of rehabilitation programs at Washington University School of Medicine.

Fee for attending the symposium and luncheon is $5. Enrollment may be made by calling the Office of Continuing Medical Education in Springfield, (217) 782-7711.

Southern Illinois has signed 14 high school student athletes and one junior college transfer to football national letters of intent, Saluki director of athletics and head football coach Doug Weaver announced Tuesday.

"We have recruited an exceptional group of young men, both as athletes and students," said Weaver. "This group was recruited to fill particular needs on the varsity. We are confident these players will be in contention for varsity position along with last years fine freshmen team."

Curt Underwood, a 6-3, 250-pound defensive lineman, and Kevin Woods, a 183-pound defensive back, played on Southwest's undefeated St. Louis Public High League champions. Woods earned all-Metro and all-state honors and was a two-time all-PHL selection, while Underwood earned all-PHL honors.

Little Men's size nets IM title

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

If the Little Men II had lived up to their name, Synchronize would be the 1974-75 men's intramural basketball champion.

Guess again.
The defending champion Little Men II made it a clean sweep for the second straight year Monday night, edging the smaller challengers, 46-42.

The victory boosted the champs to a 10-0 mark, while dropping Synchronize to 9-2. Both Synchronize losses came against the Little Men II, the first one being another four-point during the regular season.

The defending champs, who won the title game by three points a year ago, won this one with a powerful inside game which controlled the boards. Saluki football tight end Bob Habbe was the primary attraction in each case, dominating the boards and scoring 23 points—half the team total.

He led the winners' charge which erased Synchronize's last lead at 37-36 in the final three minutes. After a two-and-half minute scoreless spell, Habbe's 15-footer from the right side pushed Little Men II ahead with 2:57 left.

He added two free throws as the clock wound down to two minutes, but Jay Wilkinson's bucket for Synchronize made it 40-39 with 1:12 left.

Mike Bruegge missed an opportunity to increase Little Men II's lead, misfiring a pair of free throws with 1:02 left, but Habbe grabbed the rebound and tipped it in on the second try.

Hugh Frailly's gifter cut the margin to two, but Bruegge scored on a fast break layup to ice the win with 39 seconds left at 44-40.

Habbe was the only man in double figures for the winners, while Bob Westberg and Bob Pawkey topped the losers with 17 and 12 points, respectively.

"I would say this was one of our better-caliber championship games," Larry Schaaek, coordinator of men's intramurals, said after the game. "The large floor had an effect on both teams, but after the first quarter jitters, I thought the game was well played."

Synchronize actually entered the title game by default. They fell to Bad News, 65-61, in Sunday's semifinals, but Bad News was eliminated for use of an illegal player.

Little Men II reached the championship by downing Grills Without, 67-51.

The four teams were the last of 92 who entered the tournament play, out of 151 who registered for regular season competition.

Squids' tourney hopes dashed in 60-49 loss

By Tim Stout
Student Writer

The Topeka Chairmen ruined the SIU Squids' hopes for a national wheelchair basketball title by beating the Squids 60-49 in the regional tournament held Saturday in Topeka, Kan.

Topeka's size was the dominating factor throughout the game, as they held the Squids to only six offensive rebounds. Topeka's zone defense seemed to also give the Squids more trouble than they expected.

A pressing defense by the Squids kept them in the game during the first half as they trailed 27-23 at intermission. That same defense helped the Squids gain a four-point lead early in the second half, but after three quick Squid turnovers, the Chairmen were back in front to stay at 37-35.

Fouls were another problem which plagued the Squids as they committed 19 personals to the host team's 10. Topeka made 11 of 21 charity tosses while the Squids shot three of five from the line. As a result of their foul trouble, Nate Quinn and Leon Sturtz played the majority of the second half with four personals, severely weakening their defensive performance.

Sturtz led the Squids in scoring with 20 points, while Greg Palumbo netted 11, player-coach Ray Clark, 10 and Quinn eight. The Chairmen were led by Royce Miller and Tom Decker, who had 24 and 19 points, respectively.

Clark offered no excuses for the Squids defeat saying "We were outplayed and at times outthought. They (the Chairmen) wanted to win as much as we did."

Clark said that the absence of a big man as well as lack of a strong bench did hurt the Squids when they played teams with a good big man such as Springfield and Topeka, the only teams to beat the Squids this season.

Clark praised the play of Palumbo, a rookie, as well as that of Sturtz and Quinn, saying that each had a strong future in wheelchair sports and that next year the Squids could make a bid at the national championship in basketball.

By virtue of their trip to regional tournament play, the Squids are among the top 25 teams in wheelchair basketball out of approximately 125 teams which participate.

The Squids' final game of the season will be against the Saluki seniors in a traditional basketball game. The Squids will also begin practice for track and field shortly for handicapped students who may be interested.

Two committees hold Salukis' fate

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Like the idea of placing your future in the hands of 13 men?

That's how the Saluki basketball team stands today, as it endures the nerve-racking interim between the end of the regular season and the sending of invitations to post-season tournaments.

NCAA officials will gather in Kansas City tomorrow afternoon to hear the recommendations of the various five-member regional advisory boards around the country, before sending out invitations Thursday morning.

NIT officials will then send out their announcements Sunday after reviewing the remains from the NCAA and CCA runnerup tournament pickings.

The NIT, which appears to be the Dogs' most realistic post-season hope, even after Monday's season-ending win over 13th-ranked Creighton, has an eight-member board presently preparing its preferences.

The selection committee is chaired by Pete Carlesimo, athletic director at Fordham, located in The Bronx. He leads five permanent selection committee members, since he is president of the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Basketball Association, which runs the NIT.

The remaining four athletic directors serving as permanent members are: Ken Norton (vice president), Manhattan, also in The Bronx; Dan Quilty, New York University, in New York City; Larry Garaciotti, Wagner College, on Staten Island, and John Kaiser, of St. John's University, in Jamaica, N.Y.

Three other athletic directors are taking their turns in a rotating system which involves several Eastern school AD's. This year, it's Ben Carnevele, of William & Mary, Williamsburg, Va.; John Convooy, of LaSalle, in Philadelphia, and Maurice Zarchen of Rhode Island University, Kingston, R.I.

"The committee picks the teams they feel have the best records, considering the manner in which the records came about—meaning the competition," said

Jim Wergeles, public relations director at Madison Square Garden, where the annual attraction is staged.

"They look at the scores—how close they came to who," he said.

If that does prove to be the case, SIU could stand in good shape for an invitation. Only one of the nine Saluki losses was by a margin in double figures, that to Creighton, 81-69, in December. The Salukis, of course, avenged that defeat with the 53-47 win over Creighton Monday.

That win revived the SIU hopes—which have to be termed "slimpest," at best—for gaining entrance into the NCAA tourney. Creighton, now 20-5 with one game remaining, has generally been considered a shoo-in for a berth in the Midwest regional.

The suggestions of the five-man advisory panels will go to a six-man NCAA committee in Kansas City, with that group making the final decisions. One of the six, St. Louis University Athletic Director Larry Albus, has had occasion to run into the Salukis this year.

SIU edged St. Louis 77-73 in a January visit, then dumped the Billikens at the Arena, 79-63, in February.

Tom Scott, athletic director at Davidson University, Davidson, N.C., is the only member of the Mideast regional (SIU's) advisory committee serving on the decision-making board. Albus is on the Midwest advisory board.

Ernie Casale, Temple University (Philadelphia) athletic director, is chairman of the NCAA selection committee. Other members are: Willis Casey, North Carolina State athletic director; Wiles Hallock, Pacific-8 Conference commissioner, and Stan Watts, Brigham Young University athletic director.

The NCAA tourney will include 32 teams, including the committee's pick of the conference runnerups and independents. All league runnerups not picked for the NCAA tourney are obligated to compete in the eight-team CCA tourney in Louisville, Ky.

Sutton Death

Let the lynching mob pass me by

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Hang him over a cliff by the toenails and get the nail clippers...dress him as a photographer and tie him up in Woody Hayes's office...stab him with a poison pen.

A lot of people around SIU have expressed ideas on what to do with Saluki basketball coach Paul Lambert. They all center around the basic goal of taking that title away from him.

"When are you going to write a column demanding that Lambert resign, you coward?"—that's the usual greeting I get. After that comes, "Hi, how are ya, how come you haven't already written one?"

Well, here it is. Hate to disappoint you folks. In fact, a year ago, I probably wouldn't have been such a party pooper. But, now, no reason exists to depose the Saluki answer to Napoleon (build-wise) from his post.

Yes, the Salukis have lost eight games, including eight of 14 on the road. Yes, they have lost to two teams they blistered by about 35 points at the Arena. And, yes, they apparently have waved good-bye to that NCAA postseason tourney bid everyone was envisioning before the season even started.

But most teams with a bench about as deep as the average frying pan watch that tournament on TV. Seven-man teams hardly ever worry about post-season play.

The big factor of irritation to the fans obviously was the recent three-game tailspin on the road. Homecourt advantage cannot be worth 35 points? Agreed—but it can be a lot closer to that than the average fan would suspect.

Winning on the road is a real hassle. Just ask any team, but Indiana. The growing worry over lack of crowd control certainly does not aid an official in calling a fair game, either.

Watching a road game or two would convince most fans that it doesn't take all that bad an effort to lose "out there." How do you think SIU ripped 12 straight visitors to the Arena? If you don't think the Salukis had help (needed or not), ask Detroit coach Dick Vitale.

My prime gripe with the Saluki mentor a year ago was his constant shuffling of the lineup. Even the press crews needed programs for half the season. That doesn't happen any more, and the growing player confidence in him as a result shows.

Now the substitutions no longer seem so inopportune as they used to. The ones that do seem so have a reason.

"We have a little deal which, if the players and me understand, I really could care less if others understand," Lambert says. "We've gotten to the place that a lot of colleges can't, where, if a player's tired, he let's me know."

"The first two years, they wouldn't tell me that," he said, "but now the players know that if they come out and say, 'I need two or three minutes,' they get two or three minutes, then go back in unless the new combination is going good. We do have a game to think about."

"There's no way for a fan to know, and this is the first time I've ever been asked."

Perhaps the most frustrating aspect of Lambert's shuffling was his timing, in which a mistake often seemed—and, occasionally, still does seem—to merit an instant bench rest. It isn't hard for a fan to cringe with sympathy when a player's confidence is shaken by such a move.

Were that still going on, I would say "Yes, be gone, thy fool," because I still resort to that old school that sports should build character—even if I no longer feel it does so. But—as the players will agree—that demerit system has largely fallen by the wayside this year.

Certainly, 18-8 is disappointing for this Saluki team. Yes, even with the tougher schedule and the lack of a respectable bench, SIU should have done better.

But the fault does not lie with the coach. He (or somebody) finally brought out that talent in Perry Hines and Shag Nixon that was so obviously unreleased last season. He (or somebody) had the team playing with an almost hypnotic effect as a unit during the team's long homestand in February.

Three straight visiting coaches during that homestand began their post-game summaries of the Salukis with "They're well-coached..."

If your peers respect you, you have to be doing something right. Ditto, if your players respect you.

I don't think either was the case last year, but it is this year.
